ASK THE BOSS LADY

Where kids ask
the president of Nickelodeon,
Geraldine B.
Laybourne,
anything
they want.

Looks like everyone but me cut out for the holidays. They're hiding throughout the magazine. Help me find them. (Answers on page 95.)

Do you have a big family?

I have 26 cousins, 15 nephews and nieces, 2 kids and 1 very funny husband. In the early days of Nick when we didn't have our studios, we used to tape some of the shows at our house in New Jersey. My kids, Sam and Emmy, got to play many interesting parts. All my nieces and nephews watch Nickelodeon and give me ideas.

Why did you put Nickelodeon Studios in Orlando?

Until 1988 we produced our shows in rented studios in Philadelphia and New York. We didn't feel close enough to kids. We asked ourselves: Where can we build our own studios so kids from all over the world can visit? Where do kids everywhere want to go the most? Orlando, Florida, was the answer. Then we found out that Universal Studios Florida was about to start building, and it needed more fun things for kids. We had a ball designing the studios there, especially when we made all the architects and engineers walk around on their knees to make sure kids could see everything.

Do you have any questions for the Boss Lady? Send them to Ask The Boss Lady, NICKELODEON MAGAZINE, 1515 Broadway, 50th floor, New York, NY 10036.

Overstuffage

A Tribute to the Holidays

Overstuffage

Stuff yourself!

It's that time of year again.

Over the next month or so, every day will be either a holiday, the day before a holiday, the day after a holiday, or really close to a holiday. From Thanksgiving to New Year's Day, life becomes a blur of eating, shopping, celebrating, and basically overstuffing.

But what's wrong with that?

A grown turkey has about 3,500 feathers.

BEARD,

Only male turkeys gobble, especially during mating season (late winter and early spring).

Farm-raised turkeys can't fly because they've been bred to be fat. But wild turkeys can fly 35 miles per hour, and up to 55 miles per hour for short distances.

What's snood, dude?

Male turkeys are called "gobblers" or "toms," while female turkeys are called "hens." Baby turkeys are "poults."

WATTLE, AND SNOOD

By CATE PLYS

A FEAST OF TURKEY FACTS

The thing sticking up above a turkey's beak is a "snood." The snood is normally small, but can suddenly enlarge and droop down six to eight inches over one side. Turkey experts think male turkeys use it to attract females.

Male turkeys can change the whitish-blue skin of their bald heads to red or orange. They do it to show off.

That red thing hanging from a turkey's throat is called a "wattle." No one is sure what it does.

This tuft of feathers is known as the "beard," and it can grow up to a foot long on male wild turkeys. Females usually lack a beard. When they do have one, it's only about an inch long.

The biggest turkey ever raised weighed in at 86 pounds. His name was Tyson, and he grew up on a farm in Peterborough, England. In 1989, Tyson was auctioned for charity for a record $7,480.

TURKEYS THROUGH TIME

Hasta la vista, Señor Turkey

During their exploration of America in the 1500s, the Spanish conquistadors enjoyed eating turkey so much they brought some back to Europe, where the birds proved to be equally popular. By 1530, people were gobbling down turkey from France to Italy to England. Apparently, the Europeans were so busy stuffing their faces that they didn't look too closely at the bird. Mistaking the American bird for a similar-looking one from Turkey, the British named it turkey. (In Portugal, they call the bird peru. Go figure!)

When the Pilgrims landed in America in 1620, they found wild turkeys in abundance. It was natural, then, for the Pilgrims to include turkeys on their first Thanksgiving table in 1621.

It's a grand old bird

From the time of the Pilgrims on, turkeys have been popular in America—sometimes too popular. During the 18th and 19th centuries, American settlers killed so many turkeys the birds almost became extinct. However, after years of conservation efforts, there are now more than a million wild turkeys in 42 states.

Except for the first few Pilgrim-led Thanksgivings, the turkey-eating holiday wasn't celebrated across America until 1863. That's when President Lincoln proclaimed Thanksgiving a national holiday.

Turkey in space?

A little more than a hundred years later, America's love affair with the turkey hit new heights. When the astronauts reached the moon in 1969, one of their meals was turkey with gravy.

More turkey talk on the next page

BEARD, WATTLE, AND SNOOD

R JUST DUMB CLUCK ARE TURKEYS REALLY STUPID?

People say turkeys are so dumb, they'll look up in a thunderstorm and drown in the rain. We asked turkey farmers around the country: Are turkeys really that stupid?

"They're not really that stupid. But they'll stick their heads in holes just to see what's in there, and they'll get their heads stuck."

-Bill Bates, Alabama

"That's not true! But they will pile up if it gets cold, and the ones underneath will get crushed and suffocate."

-Elsie Drury, Missouri

"We sometimes say they're not as dumb as the people who raise them—ha, ha, ha. They won't drown in the rain, but they don't understand fences very well. They seem to think if they can get their head through, they can get the rest of their body through too. And they try real hard."

-Robert Kauffman, Illinois

GOBBLE, GOBBLE... BLECCCH

WHY TV TURKEYS LOOK SO GOOD

Turkey looks great in the ads you see right before Thanksgiving. But when it comes to those turkeys, the phrase "beauty is only skin deep" truly applies. To make a turkey look good on TV, a lot of tomfoolery goes on. For instance, the turkey you see TV families about to carve into isn't even always fully cooked. "You just cook it to the point where the skin starts shriveling," explains Craig Gibbs, photographic supervisor at Oscar Mayer Foods Corporation. "Then you paint it whatever color brown you want."

Teresa Farney, vice president of consumer affairs at the National Turkey Federation, likes to slather the turkey with a thick layer of vegetable shortening and then roast it, so the bird turns a perfect brown. To get that nice, smooth, football shape that only TV turkeys seem to have, Farney stuffs the neckhole with instant mashed potatoes. "I smooth it down to give it a nice contour, so the skin doesn't just fall into the hole," she says.

She doesn't recommend trying this at home. And, on second thought, we think we'll stick with the scraggly, overcooked kind.

And, on second thought, I'll stick to dog food.

Re-placemats

Volunteer to set the holiday table with our NICKELODEON MAGAZINE placemats, found on the next two pages. (Two more placemats are on pages 75 and 76.) To use them:

1. Carefully tear along the perforated edge.
2. Place on the table.
3. Consult when you feel the need for dinner entertainment.

Presidential Turkeys

A president has many obligations. One of the most important is being photographed with a turkey at Thanksgiving. Here are six past presidents and their feathered sidekicks. We've set up a few jokes for you. Fill in the blanks, and give our public servants and their poultry some punchlines.

No thanks, I'm trying to cut down.

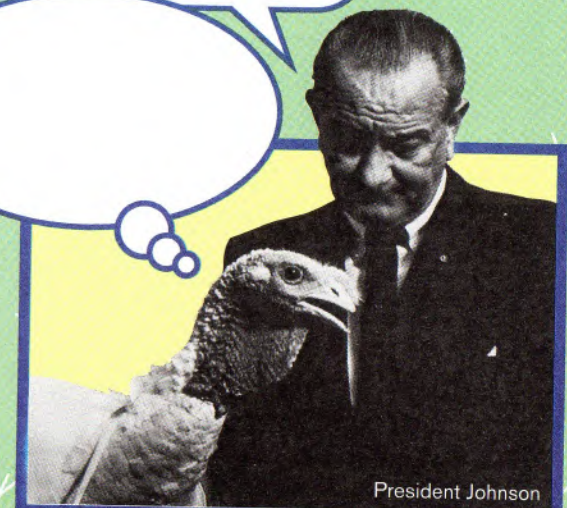

Pardon me, Mr. President!

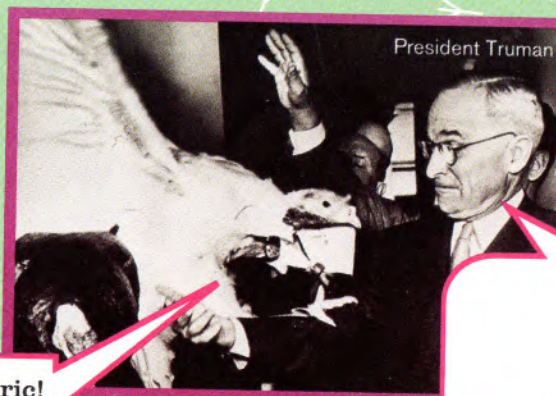

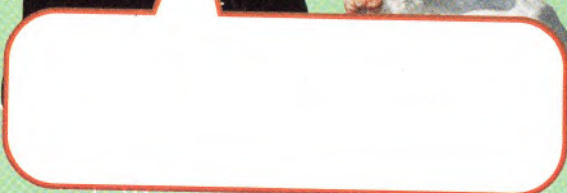

Do you think this wrinkle cream will work?

I'd like you to become my ambassador to Turkey.

I may be bird-brained, but I'm no Quayle.

I simply adore this fabric!

HOLIDAY DINNER SURVIVAL GUIDE

HOW TO BE EXCUSED FROM THE TABLE

1. Keep asking for another glass of milk until there is no more milk left. Then offer to go to the store.
2. Explain that you just started a new program of oral hygiene that includes flossing between each bite.
3. Chew really, really loudly.
4. Claim that you are so overwhelmed with thankfulness that you must go lie down.
5. Smear cranberry sauce under your nose. Then ask to be excused so you can clean up your nosebleed.
6. Wet your finger and rub it around the rim of your crystal water glass until people beg you to leave.
7. Volunteer to clear the table . . . and start with yourself.

—Patty Marx

PREDICTABLE CONVERSATION CHECKLIST

Give yourself one point for each line you hear at the table:

- ☐ So what grade are you in?
- ☐ My diet starts tomorrow.
- ☐ Why don't you give me a great big kiss?
- ☐ One more bite and I'm going to explode.
- ☐ Have I told this story before?
- ☐ What time does the game start?
- ☐ Who made the _____?
- ☐ Uh-oh. First spill of the night!

GAMES TO PLAY WHEN YOU'RE BORED AT THE TABLE

1. Fold your napkin into an origami replica of your uncle.
2. Try to move the salt shaker by staring at it.
3. Shred your napkin into confetti.
4. Attempt to put your napkin back together.
5. Make a map of the United States out of turkey slices.

THE GREAT

WRAP-[®]OFF

by Robin Sayers

Some folks get their kicks scaling mountains, swimming the English Channel, or wrestling live alligators. Others dare to tackle paper and tape. They are the gift wrappers of the world, those wranglers of ribbon who can take an object—no matter how big, how small, how unwieldy—and transform it into a neatly packaged bundle of joy.

To explore the wonders of gift wrapping, NICKELODEON MAGAZINE presents The Great Wrap-Off. Meet the wily wrappers:

SHIGERU YAMAGUCHI

Shigeru grew up in Japan, where his family trained him in the art of paper crafts. Before coming to the U.S., Shigeru wrapped gifts at Seibu department store in the city of Shizuoka.

MARETZA EL-AWANI

Maretza is a professional gift wrapper for New York City's Saks Fifth Avenue department store. Originally from the Dominican Republic, she has wrapped gifts as a hobby for more than 30 years and professionally for 10. She can make 20 different bows and can create a rose bow from ribbon in 59 seconds.

DOCTOR DRE

A different kind of rapper, Dre shares hosting duties with Ed Lover on Yo! MTV Raps. He has recorded an album and co-starred in a movie. He comes to the competition with little gift-wrapping experience. However, when he was in college, he worked as a tablecloth-and-napkin delivery man and learned to wrap up dirty linens.

THE JUDGE: AMANDA GRONICH

For eight years, Amanda has worked at FAO Schwarz, a toy store in New York City; she is the assistant to the general manager. She wrote, directed, produced, and starred in a gift-wrapping training video. After watching it, we asked her to be our judge.

TEAM #1: Dre Gets Quacking

I like him because he's the underdog.

Clueless, Dre jumps in, wrestles the duck to the table, and papers it in less than three minutes. He leaves the duck's feet loose, "so that the duck can stand on his own and feel independent."

Yards of green satin ribbon give him grief. After six minutes of fumbling, he turns the confused mess of ribbon into a leash and bow. The leash is necessary, says Dre, because the poor duck's eyes are covered.

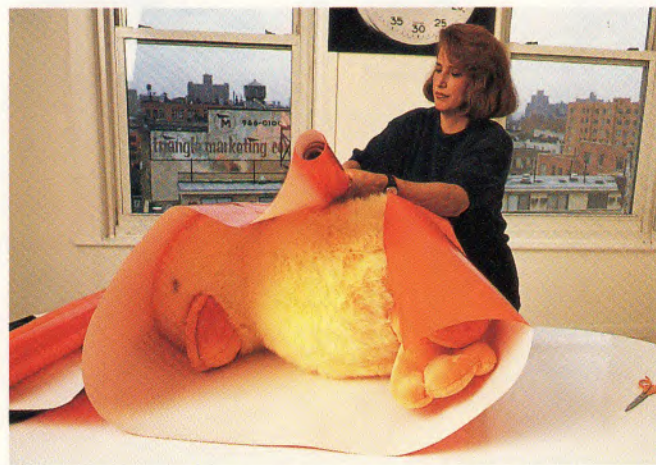

Finishing in a respectable nine minutes, 27 seconds, Dre celebrates. When asked who inspired his unusual approach to wrapping, he answers simply, "Picasso."

TEAM #2: Waltzing Maretza

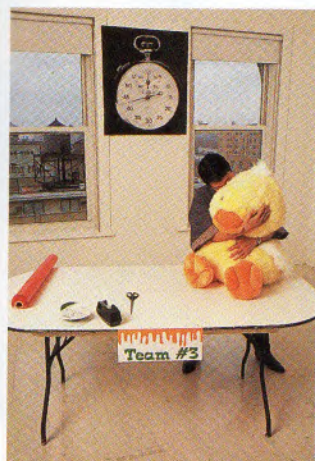

Although she once successfully gift-wrapped a human being for another contest, Maretza is nervous about wrapping the duck.

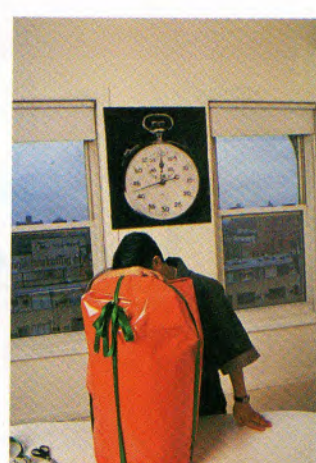

Gently twisting the duck's feet and tucking them underneath, she quickly and neatly packages it, leaving the head exposed. The crafty veteran then adorns the duck with multiple bows. Maretza remains unbowed in the face of competition, finishing in the shortest amount of time: four minutes and 42 seconds. What a pro.

TEAM #3: Can-Do Shigeru

Shigeru takes the duck-and-cover approach. Within minutes, our webbed friend is entirely covered in paper. A simple, classic bow is what the well-dressed duck is wearing this season, according to Shigeru. After five minutes and 12 seconds, Shigeru is free to go celebrate his birthday (which it happens to be), and unwrap some presents of his own.

JUDGING

It's a difficult decision for Judge Amanda. Shigeru's duck is the best, according to official criteria of gift wrapping. Yet Maretza has "inventive" stylings. Dre is commended for his unique leash. "It's a hard choice," says Amanda. Turn the page to see which wrapper she chose.

WRAP-OFF

Our winner, Maretza, feels just ducky as she holds her trophy high.

A Candy Wrapper

Everyone knows Tori Spelling, who plays Donna on Beverly Hills 90210. But did you know that her mother, Candy, loves gift wrapping so much that she has an entire room in the family's mansion devoted to it? We asked Candy about her passion for packaging. Here's what she told us.

When did you first become a serious wrapper?

Candy: When I was about 10 years old. I just loved making packages look better than they looked in the store.

How many gifts do you think you have wrapped?

Candy: At least 1,000.

What is the longest amount of time you've ever spent in the wrapping room in one stretch?

Candy: I've spent all night, around Christmas. I start around 9 at night and find myself still there at 5 AM.

If you could tell kids only one thing about wrapping, what would it be?

Candy: Make the package as pretty as you can because giving somebody something you've made, like the wrapping job, is more important than what's inside.

What's your real name?

Candy: Carole. When I was a week old, my mother's best friend kept saying, "She's as sweet as candy." It just stuck.

Do you like candy?

Candy: Oh, yes!

Do you know how to wrap fish?

Candy: I try not to wrap fish.

Have you ever wrapped gifts for Luke and Jason?

Candy: Yes. I use my more masculine papers for them.

What is the most beautifully wrapped gift

you've ever received?

Candy: Beauty is in the eye of the beholder, so gifts from my children are always the most beautiful. Of course, they usually use a stick-on bow, but that's okay.

How would you wrap your house?

Candy: I would definitely use silly string, that stuff you spray out of a can. I would cover the whole house that way.

Is there anything you can't wrap?

Candy: If something is too difficult, I just put a bow on it.

15 Uses for Leftover Fruitcake

It is a known fact that no one has ever successfully eaten a fruitcake. Unfortunately, too many well-meaning people give them as gifts this time of year. Instead of letting the cakes rot in the bread box until Valentine's Day, try some of these alternate uses.

New Year's Contest

People are always making resolutions for the New Year. They promise to lose weight, stop sucking their thumbs, quit smoking, read more, or run a thousand miles a week. Sometimes these promises stick. Most of the time, they last only until January 2nd.

Can you help a famous person come up with some New Year's resolutions? It can be anyone well-known, like a movie star, a musician, or someone from history. Maybe your ideas could even help these people (because we all need improvement). Then again, maybe you'll just win the contest.

Here's what to do: Choose a famous person. Write down three to five resolutions for him or her. Then mail the resolutions to

New Year's Contest

NICKELODEON MAGAZINE
1515 Broadway, 50th floor
New York, NY 10036

Here are some examples of resolutions:

Cleopatra

1. I will grow out my bangs.
2. I will wear less eyeliner.
3. I will start seeing a Cairo-practor.
4. I will learn five new hieroglyphics a day.
5. I will admit I live in a state of da Nile.

Hillary Rodham Clinton

1. I will have Socks' face put on Mt. Rushmore.
2. I will let Bill win at Scrabble.
3. I will return Tipper's phone calls.
4. I will finally decide on a hairdo.

Abraham Lincoln

1. I will grow a mustache so my beard isn't so lonely.
2. I will stop sitting on my hat.
3. I will find out how many years "four score" is.
4. I will remember to copyright the name Lincoln Logs.
5. I will insist people use my nickname, "Abe the Babe."

Please include your name, age, address, and phone number with your entry. (Remember, we cannot return your submission.)

We'll print some of the best resolutions in a future issue. The winners will each get three new Nickelodeon Home Videos: Ren and Stimpy, Rugrats, and SNICK. So send in those entries!

HOLIDAY 1993

All about Nickelodeon

Meet the Petes

The Adventures of Pete and Pete, the strange suburban tales of two brothers both named Pete, is getting not only weirder, but longer. On November 27, the first in a series of new 30-minute episodes airs. We wanted to know if the two Petes—Danny Tamborelli, who plays Little Pete, and Michael Maronna, who plays Big Pete—were as odd as their characters.

Well, they seemed pretty normal to us. But how normal can you be if you hardly ever go to school, and you get paid to do things like lick desks, as Danny does? Licking desks isn't even the oddest thing Danny has had to do for the show.

There was the day he spent burping in a designated "burping room." And then there was the time he had his cheek sucked on by a vacuum cleaner.

Although Michael's character, Big Pete, is the less weird one who narrates the stories, he's not exactly on the sidelines when it comes to having strange experiences. Once he spent part of the day having the makeup person write the word "mucus" on his forehead with a marker—and then scrub it off with a plastic sponge—over and over again.

Some personal info: Danny is 11 years old and Michael is 16. Michael likes to ride his bike in New York City, and Danny's favorite game is 5-on-5 Manhunt. Although different in many ways, they both agree that "liverwurst is a great food."

They also both love being in the movies. Danny was in The Mighty Ducks, and Michael played one of Macaulay Culkin's brothers in both Home Alone movies. How can you tell these guys apart from fellow actor Macaulay Culkin? "He makes more money," says Michael.

—CHRIS MARCIL AND SAM JOHNSON

The People Behind the Petes

We wanted to find out what kind of minds could make a show like The Adventures of Pete and Pete and why they would do it. So we asked the show's creators, Will McRobb and Chris Viscardi, to answer a few questions for us.

Why are they both named Pete?

There are rumors and legends, but no one knows for sure. Some people think Mom named them both Pete because she always wanted to have children with names that rhymed.

Where did Little Pete's tattoo come from?

It's a mystery. One day he came home after dark and asked his mom if she'd like to meet his new friend Petunia. Mom said "yes", and Little Pete unveiled his famous forearm tattoo. Mom fainted, but over the years she's come to consider Petunia part of the family.

What about that plate in Mom's head?

When she was a kid, her parents made her go to ski jump camp. On the first day, she wiped out on the 220-meter ramp and hurt her head landing on a gift shop. To strengthen her skull, the doctors replaced part of the bone with a four-inch steel-alloy plate. The only side effect is that she always sets off metal detectors at the airport and she can't go too close to any big magnets, like the kind that lift cars at the wrecking yard.

Do Pete and Pete get into fights?

Even though our show is about two brothers who are best friends, Pete and Pete do fight. After all, they are brothers. However, they fight the Pete and Pete way. Once Big Pete was so angry at his brother he poured an entire bottle of their dad's Old Spice after-shave on Petunia. Such a manly smell on his beloved 'senorita' really ticked off Little Pete. In retaliation, Little Pete 'borrowed' Pete's trombone and used it as a toilet snake. They both agreed that things were even after that.

Where is Pete and Pete taped?

In various locations in northern New Jersey. The Pete and Pete house is in the town of South Orange, New Jersey. You can visit it if you want, but the real people who live there will yell at you to keep off the grass.

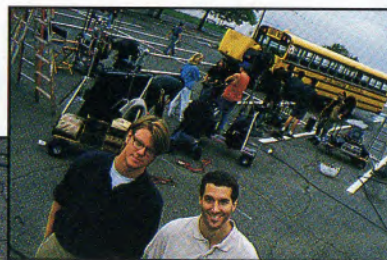

Are any of the episodes based on things that happened to you as a kid?

When I [Will] was 11, my father got so fed up with my incessant passing of gas at the dinner table that he threatened to build a soundproof, smell-proof room in the basement where I would have to live until I learned to control myself. He designed the room on a napkin, figured out how much electricity he'd need to power a giant ventilation fan, and asked me what kind of rug I'd like. "It'll have to be a fireproof rug, so that may limit your color choice," he said to me. He never did build the room, but I changed some of the details and turned it into a story we did about Dad building Little Pete a burping room in the basement.

How do you pick your guest stars? What guest star would you like to see on a future Pete and Pete?

There are a lot of people we'd love to have as guest stars on Pete and Pete. They range from Winona Ryder and Matt Dillon to Bill Murray and Henry Kissinger. If anyone out there knows Harrison Ford, let us know. We'd love him to play a telephone repairman.

John Crane Interviews John Crane

Roundhouse Roundhouse Interview Interview

Being incredibly bored one day, John Crane decided to interview himself for this magazine. John is most familiar to viewers as "Dad" on Roundhouse, zipping around the set on his motorized lounge chair. The following interview took place on the Roundhouse set.

John: Before we get started, let me just say that I really like your shirt. It's very cool.

John: Oh, thank you. Yours is cool too.

John: So John, tell us a little about yourself.

John: I always wanted to be an actor. I auditioned for all the school plays and talent shows, then went to college and earned my degree in drama. I always had a thing for comedy so after college I performed stand-up for a while before moving out to L.A. to pursue a career in entertainment...Hello?

John: Zzzzzz. Hmm?

John: I'm finished answering your question.

John: Oh, sorry. I must have dozed off. Uh, let's see, what would you say is the strangest job you've ever had?

John: Other than interviewing myself? I did an anti-litter TV commercial where I played a half-eaten baloney sandwich. I was squished between two slices of bread.

John: What's the strangest thing you've had to do on Roundhouse?

John: "Pass gas" in a bathtub.

John: Sounds fun.

John: I didn't go to college for nothin', pal. How 'bout if I ask the questions now?

John: Shoot.

John: What's it like when fans recognize you in the mall?

John: It's great. We really like it when kids come up and say they watch the show.

John: Is it true that you also write for the show?

John: That's right.

John: What things, specifically, have you written for the show?

John: Good question.

John: You asked it.

John: The writing is an ensemble effort—everyone works together. Some of my favorite sketches are "Where's Walnut," a spoof on the Where's Waldo? books, and "Scrape Fear," a sketch about the fear of fingernails scraping on a chalkboard. I've also written songs, and I've collaborated with James Raymond, who plays keyboards for the Roundhouse band. Together we wrote

"Substitution" and "If I Give You My Heart." I also invented the cellular phone and the fax machine.

John: What?

John: Just wanted to see if you were listening.

John: What's it like backstage at the Roundhouse?

John: It's nuts. Everyone is in joke mode all the time. Pranks range from dipping a bun in pickle juice and then watching David Sidoni eat it, while we're taping in front of an audience, to Alfred sneaking up behind you and placing a "Kick Me Hard" sign on your back.

John: Classic.

John: Speaking of classic, I think it's time we talk about something meaningful, important, and socially relevant. I think its time we talk about "The Chair." Is it fun to drive?

John: If I were you, and I am, I would say that it's one of the dopest, freshest sets of wheels ever to burn carpet.

John: Well, I guess that wraps up the interview. You have been a fascinating person to interview.

John: And you, my friend, are the most insightful, masterful interviewer I have ever met. You really know your stuff.

John: Likewise.

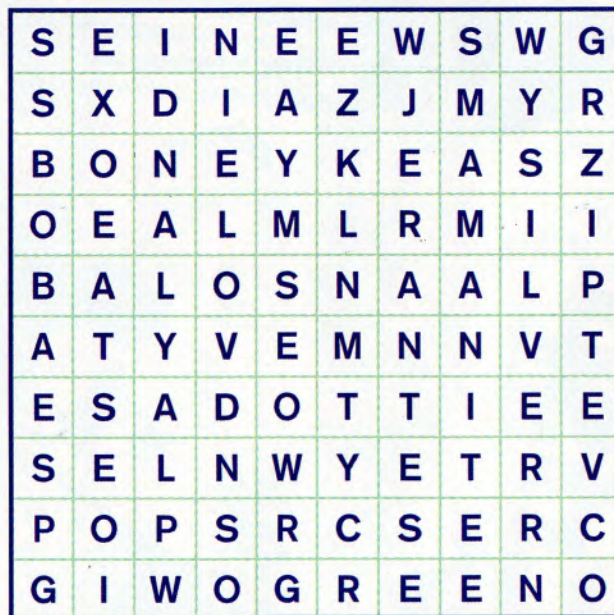

John: Ditto.

Watch This!

THE REN AND STIMPY SHOW: Believe it or not, it's true. Yes, unbelievable but true—14 new episodes begin on November 20. All new. You've never seen them before. Honest. Watch as the unbeatable duo fish for the legendary Foul Mouth Bass, tour with a group of circus midgets, and visit the remains of the mammoth Stimpysaurus.

NICK'S THANKSGIVING FEST: What would Thanksgiving be without these animated tales? This festival of specials is a Nickelodeon tradition. You can watch it Thanksgiving Day at either 12:30 PM or 7:30 PM. If you're too busy stuffing your face on Thanksgiving, watch it November 26 at 9:30 PM.

DAY OF GAMES: Starting at noon on Friday, November 26, and continuing until 8 PM, Nickelodeon will have a game show marathon. Favorite episodes from shows like Super Sloppy Double Dare, Nickelodeon Arcade and Nickelodeon Guts will air, along with old favorites like Finders Keepers and Think Fast. And don't miss a special episode of Get the Picture from Britain.

THE MUPPETS: Kermit, Miss Piggy, and the rest of the crew will have specials on Nickelodeon throughout the months of November and December on Friday nights from 8 PM till 9 PM.

November 5: The Frog Prince

November 12: The Muppets Go to the Movies

November 19: The Muppet Musicians of Bremen

November 26: The Secrets of the Muppets

December 3: The Christmas Toy

December 10: A Muppet Family Christmas

December 17: Emmet Otter's Jug-Band Christmas

Note: All times are for Eastern and Pacific time zones. Shows air one hour earlier in the Central time zone.

DOUG'S CHRISTMAS STORY and RUGRATS: THE SANTA EXPERIENCE will air on December 12 at 8 and 8:30 PM, respectively. Or watch them at their regular time slots on December 18 and 19 and again on Christmas night.

CURIOUS COLLECTIONS

Leaping Blizzards!

Collecting snowdomes may sound like a flaky hobby, but Nancy McMichael doesn't think it is. She has 4,700 of them and heads a club for collectors, called Snow Biz. We spoke to this mover and shaker in the world of snowdomes, and now we think we get her drift.

Nick Mag: What is the most often snowed-upon thing?

Nancy: Santa Claus, then winter animals and winter scenes. Niagara Falls and the Eiffel Tower also get snowed on a lot.

NM: Do other things besides snow fall out of the snowdome sky?

Nancy: There are bats and bones for Halloween, hearts for Valentine's Day, and shamrocks for St. Patrick's Day.

NM: Who invented snowdomes?

Nancy: The French, in the 1860s. They were originally made of fine glass and sold to rich tourists as souvenirs.

NM: What's inside a snowdome?

Nancy: Water and plastic flakes.

NM: How many flakes?

Nancy: The average is about 200.

NM: How many members does your club have?

Nancy: 1,580.

NM: Do all of you ever get together?

Nancy: Yes, oh my goodness. There's an annual meeting in Washington, D.C. People can bring domes to trade and sell.

NM: They say you never forget your first snowdome. Do you remember yours?

Nancy: Yes. It had a skyline of New York City. It was to die for.

NM: Sometimes domes have a plastic cork to let out the water.

How often should the water be changed?

Nancy: Whenever it gets dirty. Refill it with tap water.

NM: Are there flake refills?

Nancy: Yes. Of course.

NM: Is there a dome of a big head with dandruff falling off?

Nancy: No, but that's a good idea. There's one with a bald guy, and his hair is floating around. But none with dandruff.

NM: In order to make the snow fall, you have to shake up the thing. Has anyone ever measured what that would be on the Richter scale?

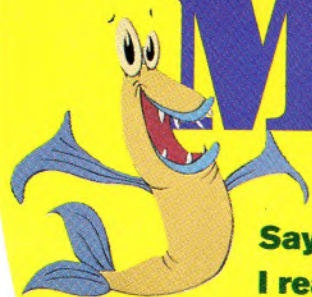

Nancy: I think it would be a 10!

My Ugly[®] Relatives

By Muddy Mudskipper As told to Howard Tomb

Say, kid, if you think I've got an ugly mug, get a load of these lousy bums. I really had to scrape the bottom of the sea to come up with this gang of eyesores. Unlike myself, a crummy cartoon character, they're real creatures who actually live in the complete darkness of the ocean deep.

Gulper Eel Some of these greedy face-stuffers have jaws and stomachs so large they can swallow fish that are longer than they are: A five-foot gulper might be able to swallow a seven-foot fish. Gulpers can survive at 10,000 feet below sea level, and it would suit me fine if they stayed there.

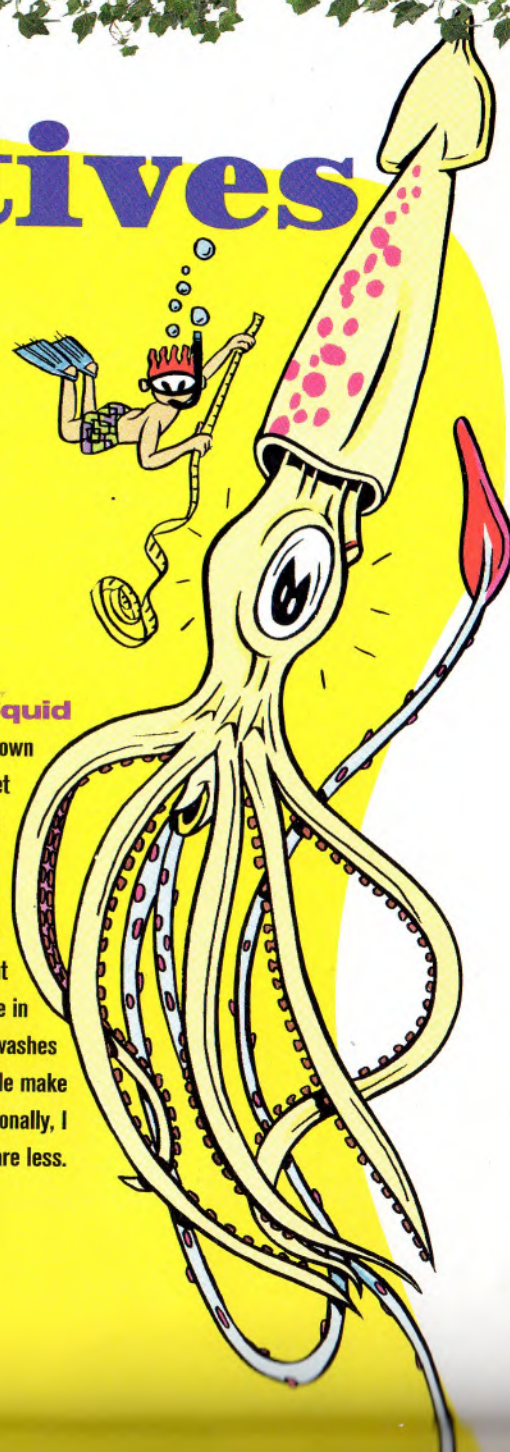

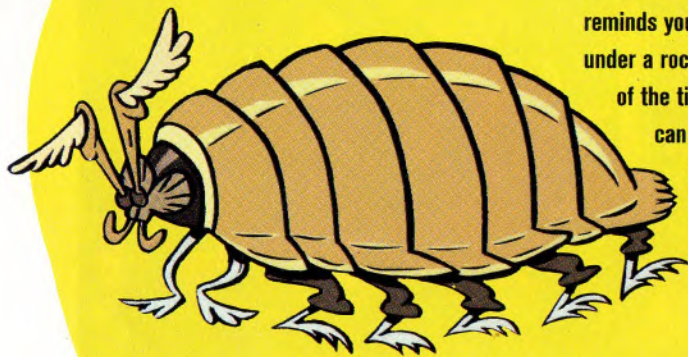

The Anglerfish The females have beady eyes, long, sharp teeth, and glowing bulbs hanging from their chins and foreheads. Females can grow to three feet in length, but males are the size of your thumb. When a male finds a female to mate with, he bites into her and hangs on, eventually merging his body with hers. Not for me—I'm the independent type.

Giant Squid

These overgrown tentacle-heads can get as long as 60 feet and can weigh more than 2,000 pounds. Unfortunately, no one has seen a living giant squid since 1861. Once in a while, a dead one washes up on shore, and people make a big fuss. Personally, I couldn't care less.

Giant Isopods If this guy reminds you of something you would find under a rock, you're not far off. A relative of the tiny pill bug, the giant isopod can grow up to a foot and a half in length. All those legs give me the creeps.

The King Crab With sharp claws and a reach that spans six feet, this palooka may look scary, but it's not a predator. It eats dead things and bits of food left by other animals. I would never stoop so low.

I become the Queen Crab when I don't get my nap.

It's time for a change of screenery as Konami takes the TV style adventures of The Turtles, the Tiny Toon Adventures characters and Batman: The Animated Series to Game Boy. With no commercials!

Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles III — Radical Rescue

Rescue™ pits the sewer crew against Cyber Shredder, a heinous, hulking cyborg. But first Mike must use a Fortress Map of Shredder's hideout to find the rest of the captured fab four. Luckily, each Turtle has a new special skill for surviving the action. Locate ID cards, keys and power ups in 5 rescue adventures crammed with creeps like Dirtbag, Scratch and Scale Tail.

Batman™ — The Animated Series is 5 original game episodes of sizzling crime fighting action, each capturing the gritty, urban heroics of the hit TV series. Strategically use Batman's grappling hook and Robin's ceiling grip to survive the onslaught and escape certain doom. In episodes like "The Green Menace" and "The Chill of a Lifetime" you'll suffer the sting of Catwoman's claw, the icy burn of Mr. Freeze's frost gun, and The Joker's sick sense of humor. Sinister fiends like The Penguin, The Riddler and other Gotham City goons are also out to make this the Dark Knight's darkest day.

Tiny Toon Adventures 2 — Montana's Movie Madness premieres 4 freaky films directed by that Bad Boy of the Box Office, Montana Max. And he's cast Buster Bunny as the villain! Buster must use new attack moves like the Fast Dash and Freeze Kick to defend his character. Buster's screen test includes action packed scenes in a classic western, a samurai saga, a sci-fi thriller, a creature feature and cool subgames. Ultimately, Buster takes on Max himself and tries to drop the curtain on his movie career.

Lounge Fact

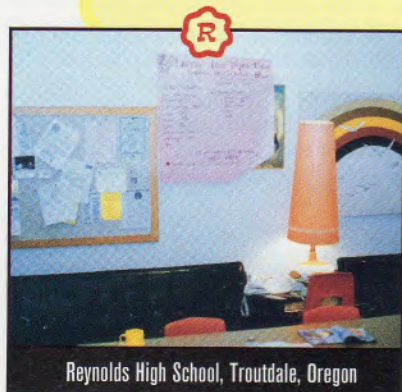

The Teachers' Lounge is the grown-ups' version of a tree house or a clubhouse. You may not need a password to enter, but you can be sure they'll do their best to keep you out. Considering its top-secret reputation, it's easy to imagine the lounge is a fantastic place, as unbelievable as this picture.

—John Deravlan

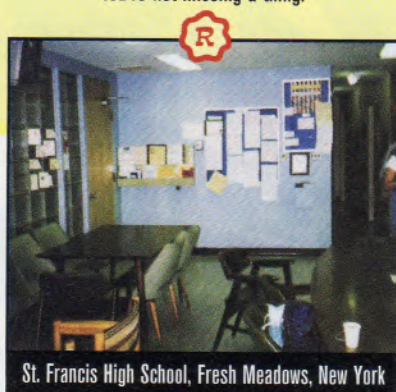

Here's the truth: Teachers' lounges are dumps.

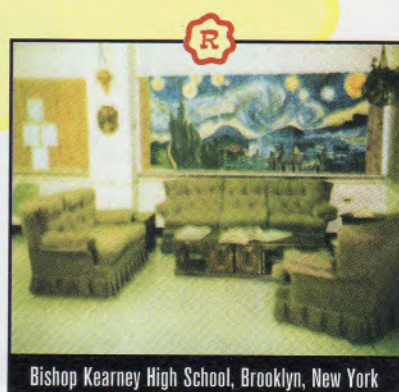

An exclusive NICKELODEON MAGAZINE photo investigation proves that teachers' lounges are boring and ugly. You're not missing a thing.

Guitar

High Notes

Can accompany self in song
Rock star potential
Can store snacks inside
Solos!

Low Notes

Doomed to accompany bad singers
Easily smashed
Always asked to play "Stairway to Heaven"
Calluses on fingers

As if class work, homework, and teamwork weren't enough, you also have music lessons. But before you start practicing scales, you might want to look at each instrument's pros and cons.

Flute

High Notes

Lightweight
Doubles as baton
Good training for soda-bottle playing
The sound makes dogs tilt their heads

Low Notes

Too many buttons
Not enough volume
At first, sounds like blowing on hot soup
End up smiling like a dolphin while playing

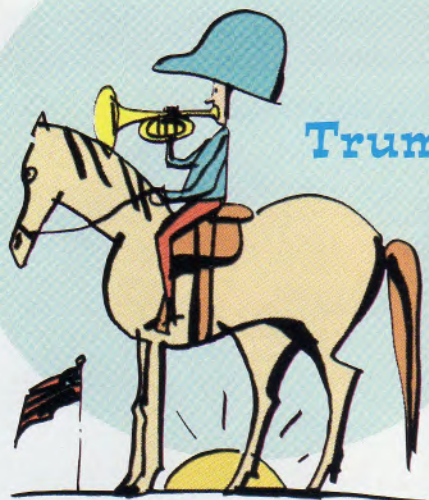

Trumpet

High Notes

Loud
Only three buttons to worry about
Get to empty spit valves and gross out flutists
Can see weird reflections of your face in the bell

Low Notes

Chipmunk cheeks
Always pestered to play "Taps," "Reveille," or "Charge!"
Continually mistaken for a bugle
Rubber band-shooting oboists use bell for target practice

Piano

High Notes

Straightforward: right is high, left is low
Thanks to synthesizer, you are Master of All Instruments
Easy on the lungs
Pedals let you pretend you're driving a car

Low Notes

Difficult to carry to parties
Lid can slam on fingers
Two hands must do different things at the same time
You're always upstaged by player pianos

Violin

High Notes

Can pretend you're a gangster
Lets you escape the embarrassment of the marching band
Rosin is swell
Encouraged to fiddle around

Low Notes

Sound is often mistaken for a sick cat
Looks like you have a double chin
Could spend rest of life playing second fiddle
Limits your future in heavy metal bands

Drums

High Notes

High cool quotient
Never worry about pitch, just rhythm
Can impress friends with stick-twirling tricks
People can't really tell when you've made a mistake

Low Notes

Everyone thinks they can play the drums
Lack of pitch may lead to inferiority complex
Big hassle to lug around
May be asked to lead troops into battle

Alter-notes

If none of these traditional choices appeal to you (or if you'd just like to get out of having to take music lessons), tell your parents you'd be happy to play one of the following:

Didgeridu:

A long eucalyptus branch that has been hollowed by termites. Played by Australian Aborigines.

Nose Flute:

Called the fangufangu in Polynesia, but found all over the world.

Nose flutes: now performing at a tissue box near you.

Crumhorn:

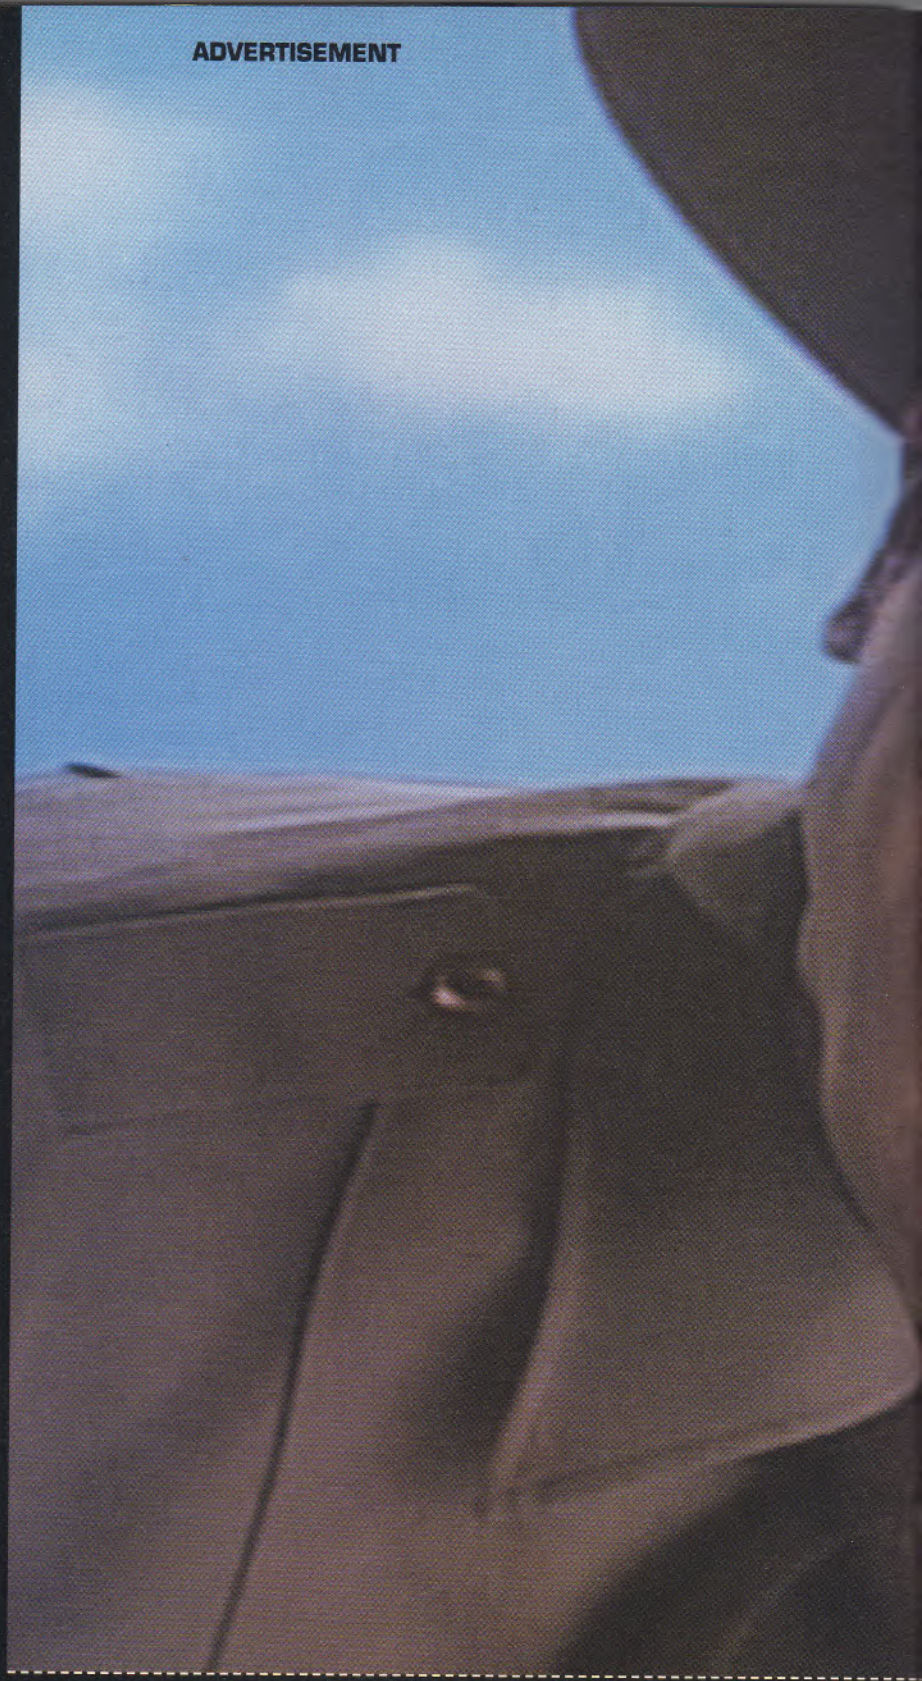

A J-shaped wind instrument from the 1600s. Sounds kind of like an oboe with a kazoo stuck in it.

by Joseph Malgarini

Charles Dickens wrote A Christmas Carol in England in 1843. Since then, the book has become a holiday classic. In the story, a cranky old miser (no, not your dad) named Ebenezer Scrooge learns the true meaning of the holiday season after three ghosts—the spirits of Christmas past, present, and future—visit him on Christmas Eve.

The Scrooge Tube

If you are near a TV during the holidays, chances are you will see at least one version of this tale. Since each is slightly different, we've assembled this viewing guide.

Note: These shows are also available on video.

Mister Magoo's Christmas Carol (1962)

Scrooge: Mister Magoo

Review: Mr. Quincy Magoo takes Scrooge to Broadway and transforms the Dickens story into a musical. Has some very Magoo touches; for instance, the Ghost of Christmas Present tells McGoo he is "so tight with a penny he won't buy spectacles." Added treat: the catchy Cratchit family song about the joys of "razzleberry dressing" and "waffle jelly cake."

The Muppet Christmas Carol (1992)*

Scrooge: Michael Caine

Review: The narrator of this very funny musical version is Charles Dickens himself — or so he claims to be. (Actually, it's the Great Gonzo.) Kermit the Frog and Miss Piggy appear as Mr. and Mrs. Bob Cratchit. Kermit not only sings, he also ice-skates with the penguins.

*Available only on video

A Jetson Christmas Carol (1985)

Scrooge: Cosmo S. Spacely
Review: George, Jane, Judy, and Elroy Jetson star as the Cratchit family. George's boss, Mr. Spacely, brings Scrooge into the space age. Very funny—especially when they go Christmas shopping at "Mooningdale's" department store. Another highlight: Astro's holiday takes a turn for the worse when he gets sick after devouring a mechanical cat.

Bugs Bunny's Christmas Carol (1979)

Scrooge: Yosemite Sam
Review: How can you go wrong with Bugs? In order to "avoid lookin' at all them ugly decorations," Yosemite Sam tries to sleep through Christmas. That's when Bugs, as the Christmas Ghost (combining all three spirits into one), decides to change things. Special appearance by Tweety in the role of Bob Cratchit's youngest son, Tiny Tim.

Mickey's Christmas Carol (1983)

Scrooge: Scrooge McDuck
Review: Donald Duck's stingy uncle, Scrooge McDuck, gets typecast in this rather faithful adaptation. Special appearances by Mickey and Minnie Mouse as the Cratchits and a very clumsy Goofy as the ghost of Jacob Marley, Scrooge's former business partner.

A Christmas Carol (1951)

Scrooge: Alastair Sim
Review: One of the best versions ever made, with Scrooge just as mean and grumpy as you've always imagined him. We especially like the Ghost of Christmas Present—a roly-poly guy who shows up sitting atop a feast of food. Spooky-neat scene with Star Trek-like music where a flock of ghosts gets stuck in limbo.

THE MOVIE COUCH

On screen, you know him as the most excellent Garth Algar, Wayne Campbell's loyal friend. In real life, he's DANA CARVEY. Recently, Dana stopped by The Movie Couch and spoke to NICKELODEON MAGAZINE about chunkage, life as a 12-year-old, and his new movie, which comes out in December, Wayne's World 2.

Nick Mag: What happens in Wayne's World 2?

Dana: Wayne and Garth get the opportunity to put on a concert. But then there is some question as to whether or not that concert will happen. And Garth looks for love in all the wrong places. Kim Basinger and Olivia d'Abo (the older sister from The Wonder Years) are in it. Garth falls for both of them. I guess you could say Garth comes of age.

NM: Does anyone hurl in the car?

Dana: Well, Garth develops this new technique for containing chunkage. So, I won't speak for everyone, but Garth doesn't hurl too much.

NM: In real life, do you call vomit "hurl" or something else?

Dana: My personal favorite is "spew" or "spewage." When I'm sick with the flu, I tell my wife that I have to spew.

NM: Did you model Garth after anyone you know?

Dana: My brother Brad.

NM: How is he like Garth?

Dana: He's kind of shy and totally honest and real smart and cool.

NM: What does Brad do?

Dana: He's a computer genius.

NM: Do you ever play him in computer games?

Dana: No. I don't even want to get near him with a computer game.

NM: Do you play computer games?

Dana: Not as much as I used to. A couple of years ago for Christmas I got a Super Mario Bros. and I played it for 10 hours straight that day. I almost went blind trying to find the stupid princess.

NM: How many kids were there in your family?

Dana: I have three older brothers: Scott, Brad, and Mark. And a younger sister, Lori.

NM: Growing up, did you have a basement like Wayne and Garth?

Dana: We didn't have a basement. But we did have an area under the front of our house. In 1963, my brothers and I tried to build a fallout shelter there. But after we worked on it for a week or so, Brad pointed out that quarter-inch plywood wouldn't give us too much protection against a thermonuclear bomb. So we gave up.

NM: When you were 12 years old, what were you like?

Dana: A lot like I am now.

NM: A movie star?

Dana: Yeah, right. No, I was silly and into drumming and trying to imitate people. All I really wanted to do was make people laugh.

NM: Who was your best friend when you were 12?

Dana: I really didn't have one. I was pretty lonely most of the time. I hung out sometimes with a kid named Howie Avila.

NM: How did you start doing impressions of people?

Dana: I had this little tape recorder as a kid, and I would record people on TV and then imitate them.

NM: Who was your first impression?

Dana: My first impression was a Liverpool accent. It was when the Beatles were on The Ed Sullivan Show, and I tape recorded that.

NM: Did you ever imitate your teachers? Did they catch you?

Dana: They caught me. But I wanted to be caught. I wanted people to laugh.

My first impression was a tree I barfed.

"I have to go sit in the hall?
Well, okay,
teacher-lady."

NM: Did you get kicked out of class?

Dana: I would always get kicked out of Spanish. The teacher would make me go sit in the hall. I never understood why when you goof off, the teacher makes you leave the room. "No, teacher. I want to stay in this hot, smelly classroom. What? I have to leave and go sit in the hall? Well, okay, teacher-lady." I loved having to go sit in the nice cool hall. I'd sit there and practice impressions, lay down, read. I thought it was cool. I never got it.

NM: Were you the class clown?

Dana: In alternate years. Second grade, yes. Third, introverted. Fourth, clown. Fifth, introverted. Sixth, clown. Then seventh through twelfth, introverted.

NM: Were you ever in school plays?

Dana: No, because the years I wanted to do it, I was introverted, too shy.

NM: Did you like school?

Dana: I got my education outside of school. I did have one or two good teachers, like Mr. Turner, an English teacher. I loved English, loved reading. He taught me about life, that things aren't always as they seem. Like you see someone and they might look like they're a good person, but they're bad. And you see a person who looks evil but is a good person.

NM: If you went back to grade school now, what would you do differently?

Dana: I would be less afraid of everything. Less afraid of being laughed at. Less afraid of what people think about me. Less concerned with all that stupid stuff. I would be more of an individual. One of the biggest things to learn is that you can't care what people think about you. I went through my entire childhood being terrified of stupid things, of people thinking I was stupid. I was very lonely. If I could go back, I would just be less afraid of who I was and what I wanted to do. I would be an individual.

NM: Do you really need to know phonics as an adult?

Dana: Sure. You can't read otherwise. It's the basis of sentence structure and grammar.

NM: What about integers?

Dana: What?

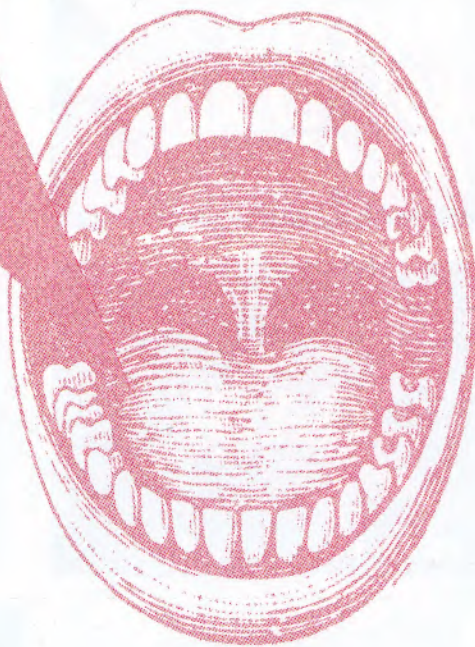

NM: Integers.

Dana: What are those?

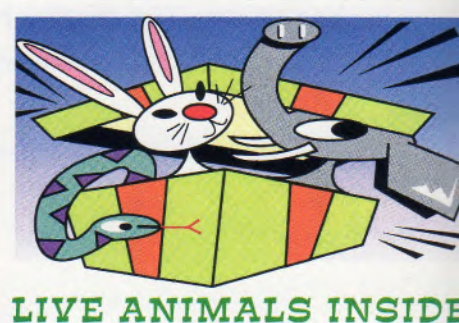

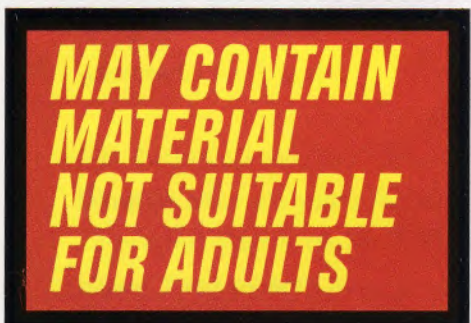

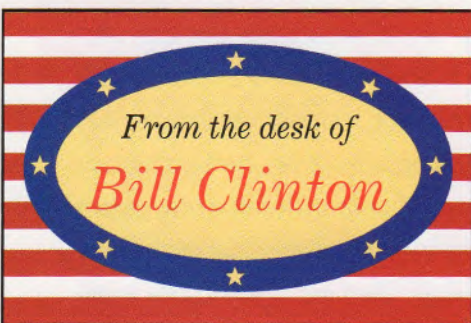

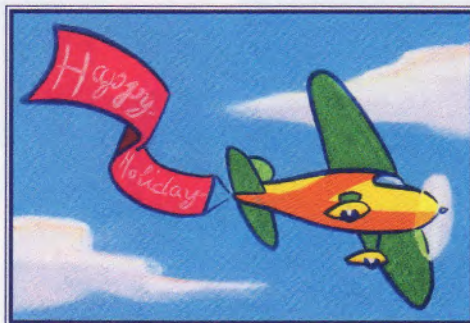

NM: Numbers.

Dana: I have no clue what they are. You lost me with that. I wasn't too good with math.

Out of spit?

Hope not! Turn the page for more Nickelodeon stamps!

NM: Can you reduce $16/2$ to a whole number?

Dana: Now you're really too far for me. I have no idea.

NM: If Barney, the singing purple dinosaur, fought a Jurassic Park velociraptor, who would win?

Dana: Barney would start singing in that voice, and the other guy would be on his knees begging for mercy; he'd be crying from the pain.

NM: When you spent the night visiting George Bush at the White House, where did you sleep?

Dana: In the Lincoln bedroom.

NM: Did you see Babe-raham Lincoln's ghost?

Dana: Sure.

NM: Really?

Dana: Yeah.

NM: What did he say?

Dana: Nothing. But I read the Gettysburg Address. It's in the room. Lincoln had terrible penmanship. That guy was a slob.

NM: Did you raid the White House refrigerator?

Dana: Nope.

NM: Do you have any pets?

Dana: No, I have two kids. That's enough.

NM: What is your "most excellent" quality?

Dana: When I'm cranky, I let people know it.

NM: What is Garth's "most excellent" quality?

Dana: That he's totally honest – all the time.

NM: One more question: What should someone do if they see a flying monkey?

Dana: Sit down fast! You don't want any more monkeys getting out.

Don't have time to read that book for your next book report? The U.S. Postal Service can help. It recently issued stamps honoring classic novels like The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn and Little Women. So if you can't read the book, read the stamp.

Here are the stamp book reports we made up:

Little Women:

This is the story of three girls and a lady. They like to sit around and read other people's mail.

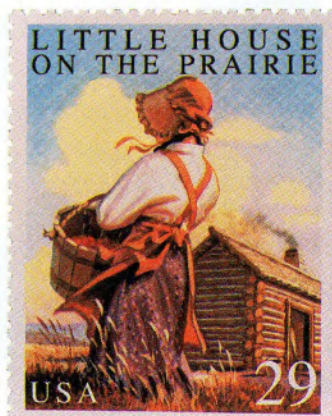

The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn:

This is the story of a boy who wears a hat and a white shirt and carries a bucket. He stands in the grass under a sky full of big puffy white clouds. He stares all day at a boat with smoke coming out of it.

Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm:

This is the story of a girl who rides around in a stagecoach. She doesn't look very happy.

Little House on the Prairie:

This is the story of a girl who wears a hat and a white shirt and carries a bucket. She stands in the grass under a sky full of big puffy white clouds. She stares all day near a house with smoke coming out of it.

Dueling Textbooks

There are two sides to every story. That's especially true when you see how history books from two countries describe the same event. Read this and see how British and American kids get different views of the American Revolution.

History Alive: 2
(history textbook used in Great Britain) on the American Revolution:

"The real cause of the quarrel between the colonies and Britain, which led to the War of Independence and the creation of the United States, was that the states were growing up and felt the need to be their own masters, rather in the way some boys and girls in their teens rebel against their parents."

"Sounds like someone is a sore loser."

Challenge of Freedom (history textbook used in the U.S.) on the American Revolution:

"During the 1770s, political and economic differences between the American colonists and the British government grew.... However, greater use of military force by Great Britain caused more Americans to think that the colonies should be free from their home country."

"Maybe the Americans were tired of being kept on such a short leash."

Dear Alien

I'm QZ and I am the greatest know-it-all in the universe. I know everything under, over, and inside the sun. So ask me a question, and I'll give you a down-to-Earth answer.

Dear QZ:

I was wondering why the sky is so high. I guess you think I'm really stupid because I asked that question, but I was just wondering.

Paul V.

Lynchburg, Virginia

Paul: No way are you stupid. I am 100 times smarter than the average Earthling, and even I can't answer your question. It's a good thing the sky is high, though, because if it weren't, we would always be scraping our heads against it. There is a planet in a solar system very far from yours where the creatures are very tall and very vain; they have to slouch so as not to get their hair all messed up when they hit one of their five moons. So, to borrow from Bruce Springsteen: Walk tall, Paul, or don't walk at all!

Dear QZ:

If atoms make up everything, do they make themselves?

Blake W.

Baton Rouge, Louisiana

Blake: Somebody made it up that atoms make up everything. It was probably atoms that made it up. They're very hungry for any publicity they can get, since they're so small. In truth, atoms don't make themselves; themselves make atoms.

Dear QZ:

You look like a clay person and a nerd without glasses. Are you?

Courtney

Tucson, Arizona

Courtney: 'Tis a pity you care so much about appearances. If I lived on your planet, I'd bat .450 and hit 200 home runs playing baseball, and I'd score 200 points a game in basketball. Easily. And that would be without glasses. That would be blindfolded. By the way, I eat a bowl of clay every morning. Got a problem with that?

Do you have a question for QZ? Write to: Ask QZ, NICKELODEON MAGAZINE, 1515 Broadway, 50th floor, New York, NY 10036. Sorry, but the space-time continuum prevents QZ from personally answering every letter.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE

BY PATTY MARX

Would you rather be a pair of eyeglasses or a snow shovel?

Advantages of Being a Pair of Eyeglasses

You're always right on the nose

If you're lost, there's an all-out search party

Always focused

No heavy lifting

You get out and see the world

No fear of replacement by snow blower

You can always say you were framed

Advantages of Being a Snow Shovel

Work for three months, get nine months off

Plenty of exercise

People come to you to get the scoop

Provide employment for neighborhood kids

No fear of replacement by contact lenses

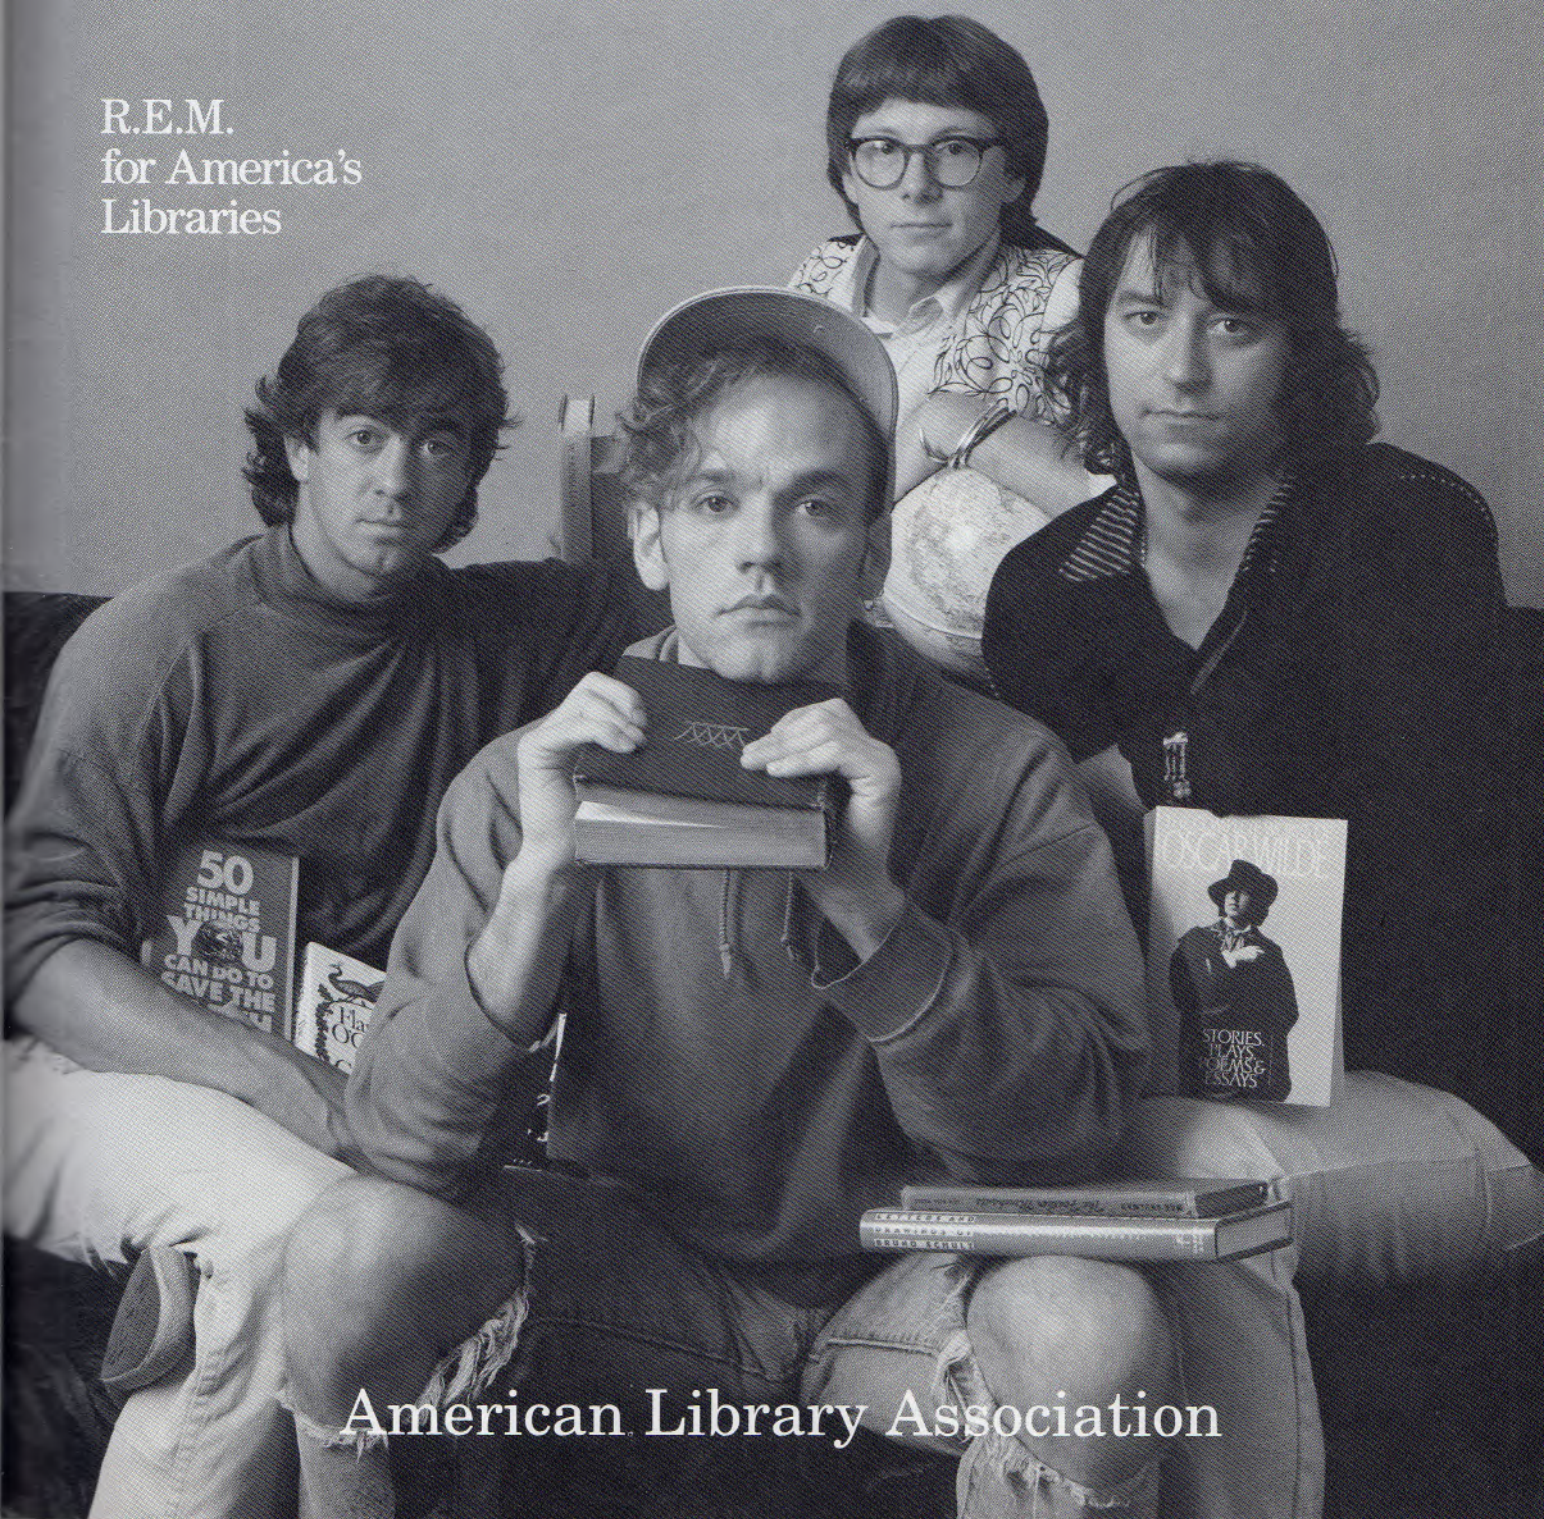

There's no business like snow business

Get to snoop around garage when no one's looking

Let the Food Games Begin

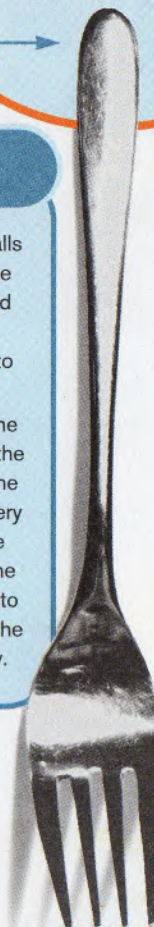

LAUNCHING PAD
Place bread ball here

Fork Flip

Prepare bread balls by separating the soft part of bread from the crust. Squish bread into small balls.

Place a fork on the fork photo. Load the bread ball onto the launching pad. Very gently press the prongs so that the bread ball flies into the air. Try to hit the bull's-eye below.

Place three peas at the starting gate.

SNOWBALL moves ahead one space every time someone at the table says "yes."

BLIZZARD moves ahead one space every time someone says "no."

FROSTY moves ahead one space every time someone says "what."

Get it?
Dinner conversation is what sends these babies on their way to the winner's circle. Place your bets and listen up.

The Bean Stands Alone

Place one bean in each box, except the box marked "x." If beans are not available, use corn kernels. Jump one bean over another—across, up and down, or diagonally, just like in checkers. Eat each bean that has been jumped. Keep going until you have jumped all you can.

LETTERS

Dear NICK MAG,
I'm writing to you because of the annoying car songs. They worked for me because me and my friend sang "Are We There Yet?" until we got home. When we got home, my dad said "I'm not taking you anywhere again." So I ask you to make more songs.

Here's our version (sung to the tune of Frère Jacques):

I'm so hungry
I'm so hungry
I need food
I need food
Right this minute
Right this minute
Please right now
Please right now
Your fans,
Paul and Patrick

And I'm the one who gets the muzzle.

You seem pretty happy for two kids who probably aren't going anywhere ever again!

To save Pete and PJ from the pirates, you've gotta be Goofy.

Pete and PJ thought it was a beautiful day for fishing on Spoonerville Island. That is, until Keelhaul Pete and his band of pirates caught them. Now Goofy and Max are off to the rescue through 5 puzzling, pirate-filled levels of castles, forests and caves. With your help, they'll make it to the pirate ship where Keelhaul Pete awaits and make him walk the plank.

When Goofy and Max meet the first boss, it's a real ball.

A potted palm can really keep the pirates in their place.

The orange pads are key to Goofy and Max making it through the knight.
